GRADUATE FUNDING

Graduate Internship Program
2020-21

- Funding for short-term internship
- New: Open to in-course Doctoral and Master's students for a limited time
- Applications accepted on a rolling basis

Graduate and Postdoctoral Studies is expanding the Graduate Internship Program (normally known as the Doctoral Internship Program) to allow for in-course internship opportunities for both doctoral and Master's students in an effort to increase opportunities for professional development under the current circumstances. In-course internships for doctoral students and all internships from Master's students will need approval from the McGill supervisor, who will sign off on the application form.

Value and Duration

Up to $2,000 per month for an internship of 1-3 months

Eligibility

Applicants:

- Must be enrolled in a doctoral or Master's thesis program at McGill and remain registered full-time during the internship;
- Must have completed their Individual Development Plan (IDP). Students can use the myPath tools or any of our recommended options to create their IDP;
- Must be PhD 6 or earlier, or M2 or earlier;
- For PhDs, must have held an advisory committee meeting within 10 months prior to the start date of internship (if not at the end of their doctoral degree program);
- For PhDs, must not have defended their thesis prior to start date of internship; and
- If applicable, must hold appropriate work permit for internship site.

How to Apply

Students are responsible for securing their internship before submitting their completed and signed application form and supporting documents to GPS online. GPS website offers resources to help identify potential host organizations.

Deadline

Applications are accepted on a rolling basis.

While internships abroad may be permitted in a virtual environment, no physical travel outside of Quebec or requiring air travel is allowed. This is according to the current McGill policy on University-related travel.
